I'm hiring!

Amy is an exemplary example of what a strong recruiting partner looks like. She's personable, focused on details, devoted to a positive candidate experience, and most of all tenacious. My favorite Amy story goes like this: We had a strong engineer that we had been courting for months. After a ton of work on all sides, he accepted with a start date 6 weeks in the future. Of course, his current employer worked on him during this time and made him a counter offer to stay. He made his apologies to us and despite my best efforts to turn things around, he held firm and we parted friends. I let Amy know and considered us done with the candidate. Amy proceeded to spend the next 5 weeks engaging with the candidate. To my shock, he accepted his original offer and started on his original start date. He's now one of the strongest engineers on the team - happy and hitting balls out of the park. Amy just doesn't give up. ever. She's the best of the best.

Amy is simply amazing to work with. She has been a true partner and helped me to successfully recruit dozens of top notch talents in the last couple of months. I was deeply impressed how she handled many tasks at the same time and always stayed on top of things. Amy is a great communicator and listens well, she has a natural ability to connect with people and understand their needs. She has done a great job representing both the company and candidates needs, very successful in closing the offer.
